

Team reflection week 4 Part 1: Group Tatooine 23/9

Application of Scrum

This week we tried to improve the quality of the user stories. We wrote them in the form “As X I want Y since Z”. We also provided a more detailed description of the story, and made a checklist with criterias to be met before the story can be considered completed. After we created the user stories we checked all of them according to the I.N.V.E.S.T criteria. This allows for a more specific definition of done for each story. We have also scrambled the groups in which we do sprints so that everybody learns every aspect of the program.

Social Contract and Effort

Up until now, the team has had two meetings every week (tuesday and friday). We collectively chose to merge these two meetings into one, where we reflect on how our user stories are supposed to look and do the team reflection together which we hold on tuesdays. So we decided that we will hold a weekly meeting on Tuesdays, doing both the next sprint planning and the team reflection for the previous week. Since we decided our sprint deadline to be Sundays 23:59, it doesn't make sense to evaluate on Fridays when not all of the stories have been completed yet. This reflection was made Friday 23/9 and refers to sprint 2, and will be in two parts. Part 1 today regarding how we will conduct our meetings, and a reflection about the tasks done during the sprint is to be made Tuesday next week.
